COMMANDING OFFICER'S
UNIT, PERSONAL AND FAMILY READINESS POLICY

Unit, Personal, and Family Readiness is vital to accomplishing the mission of Marine Wing Headquarters Squadron 2. Family Readiness and Combat Readiness go hand-in-hand.

Our Marines and Sailors do amazing things each and every day but I realize that none of this would be possible without the tremendous support of our families. Your sacrifices and dedication are vital to maintaining our morale and providing a base of support from which we derive our strength. Military life is a calling with tremendous sacrifice, for both the service member and the family; I recognize and appreciate your perseverance and endurance. We would be unable to achieve what we do, day in and day out, without the support we receive from our families.

Readiness is my number one priority. This means having the right plan, information, tools and resources to successfully meet the challenges we face. We also need well informed and supported families. The Marine Corps has taken steps to accomplish this by providing many family resources and programs and hiring full time civilian Family Readiness Officers (FRO). Susan Stamper-Smith is the "Deuce" FRO. She is our resident expert for Official Communication, Readiness and Deployment Support, Information and Referral and Volunteer Management. She is here to assist you and your family in finding the resources you need. She can be reached at (252) 466-7035 or by email at susan.stampersmith@usmc.mil .

Today, as we continue to support the Global War on Terror, we all work harder than ever to balance family life with work. I am keenly aware of the pressures we place on our families. I am equally impressed with the way our families come together and support one another. Your contribution to our collective success will not be taken for granted.

Thank you for your continued support, sacrifice, and loyalty. Semper Fidelis!

Alan W. Solter
Lieutenant Colonel
Commanding Officer, MWHS-2

COMMANDING OFFICER'S
UNIT, PERSONAL AND FAMILY READINESS POLICY

Unit, Personal, and Family Readiness is vital to accomplishing the mission of Marine Wing Headquarters Squadron 2. Family Readiness and Combat Readiness go hand-in-hand.

Our Marines and Sailors do amazing things each and every day but I realize that none of this would be possible without the tremendous support of our families. Your sacrifices and dedication are vital to maintaining our morale and providing a base of support from which we derive our strength. Military life is a calling with tremendous sacrifice, for both the service member and the family; I recognize and appreciate your perseverance and endurance. We would be unable to achieve what we do, day in and day out, without the support we receive from our families.

Readiness is my number one priority. This means having the right plan, information, tools and resources to successfully meet the challenges we face. We also need well informed and supported families. The Marine Corps has taken steps to accomplish this by providing many family resources and programs and hiring full time civilian Family Readiness Officers (FRO). Susan Stamper-Smith is the "Deuce" FRO. She is our resident expert for Official Communication, Readiness and Deployment Support, Information and Referral and Volunteer Management. She is here to assist you and your family in finding the resources you need. She can be reached at (252) 466-7035 or by email at susan.stampersmith@usmc.mil .

Today, as we continue to support the Global War on Terror, we all work harder than ever to balance family life with work. I am keenly aware of the pressures we place on our families. I am equally impressed with the way our families come together and support one another. Your contribution to our collective success will not be taken for granted.

Thank you for your continued support, sacrifice, and loyalty. Semper Fidelis!

Alan W. Solter
Lieutenant Colonel
Commanding Officer, MWHS-2